A LINE O' CHEER
(Written specially for The Washington Herald.)
By John Kendrick Bangs.
A FOOLISH PLAIN.
"Time is dragging?" Heavens, man—Let Time drag as best he can—Lengthen out the minutes till
Each an hour seems to fill.
Let each hour drag away
Till it seems a good full day.
"So much to be done to win!"
So few days to do it in!
Raise no plaint if Time shall lag.
Let the sluggish seconds drag
If they help us to put through Tasks that we have to do!

"Tired of life of ease," says a New York runaway girl. Usually the run-aways are in search of such a life.
If Mr. Hoover's "save-wheat" campaign should fail, it will not be for lack of free advertising from the newspapers.
Secretary McAdoo is showing his ability to juggle with billions in a way which would make the whole Rothschild family gasp.
We wish Miss Jeanette Rankin all possible luck in her quest out in Montana. Her copper resolution should be passed by Congress.
"Norwegian Girl Travels 4,000 Miles to War," says a headline. "A number of American girls take a trip nearly as far to Reno, in order to escape the bonds.
Only certain thing in the New majority situation seems to be "Charlie" Murphy is nearing the end of his long reign in Fourteenth ep. Baer presents his "free resolution in Congress, there merry times ahead in Wash-and embarrassing questions for the department to answer.
The dispatches read: "Germans down twenty-six planes" and mer accounts for fifty-two Ger-planes." As long as the ratio remains as this, we have no cause to worry.
Washington's example in holding a parade of the drafted men is being followed by every other large city in the country. Since we set the pace let's hold the front rank position by making that of the District the most imposing of all.
"The marines have landed and have the situation well in hand." How many times have we read this in the past? It appears again in a dispatch which tells of the rescue of twelve Americans in China. The Marine Corps is a glorious branch of the service.
A speaker in the West declares that there will be another legal holiday placed upon the calendar in America which will probably be more widely celebrated than the Fourth of July.
He did not receive much attention, yet there is more logic than prophecy in his words. It is highly probable that this war will bring forth one big day to be celebrated by Americans.
Whether it be a battle or a move for peace remains to be seen.
THE FREEDOM OF THE WORLD.
The land is all a-tremble
With the tread of many feet;
Making ready for the Army,
Making ready for the fleet;
Making ready for the People free
That shall set the People free
From From the ruthless, frightful frenzy
Of the foe across the sea.
As tyranny increases
Peoples rise and overthrow Kings and empires; win to freedom
Thro' their weariness of woe!
All the People are making North and south and east and west;
And Democracy is winning
Where Autocracy oppressed.
The People are the Power,
They shall come into their own
And be subjects of no ruler.
Who is monarch of a throne.
The earth is all a-tremble,
And our flag is wide-unfurled—
We too have joined the battle
For the Freedom of the World!
STELLA V. KELLERMAN
A SONG OF PARTING.
"Go to leave you, Mother Dear,
To go and do my "bit";
So what's the use of shedding tears?
Let's make the best of it.
Perhaps I won't return for years,
And maybe not at all—
But I'll try to do my best,
If I should chance to fall.
I don't suppose I'm very brave,
No more so than the rest,
I don't long to fill a grave,
But I'll try to do my best.
I don't talk much of liberty,
And of this hero stuff,
But I want to pound the enemy
Until he cries "enough."
You know, dear Mother, in the Spring
I was to get a flat.
There was to be a wedding,
But I must forget all that;
But on the outpost, silently,
At midnight I shall kneel
And pray for her who waits for me
Back home as true as steel.
VICTOR A. HOLBERG

Getting Our Troops Abroad.
Americans are going into the trenches soon. The opening of a casualty list in the Official Bulletin is significant, because it means that the Pershing expeditionary force has about completed its period of training in France. But the American people do not like to think of being represented in the onslaught against the Hun with the mere skeleton of an army—they want everything possible done to show our real potentiality as a fighting factor in the war, and done quickly.
The shipping situation slowly is clearing itself. There is less pessimism talk heard in Washington now. A few days ago army officers were saying we would not have 60,000 troops in France by Christmas. They do not indulge in such loose speculation now. They know that Secretary of War Baker has just announced the formation of two new National Guard divisions, one from New England, the other "mixed," and both to go abroad before long. It seems certain that we will have at least 100,000 men abroad by New Year's and probably exceed that total considerably; and if the shipping situation continues to improve, America may surprise itself by having a great force in France before spring.
We hope and believe that the army program will gather momentum as it goes on—that new achievements of American executive genius will unfold themselves, that in the 1918 offensive against Germany the United States will contribute powerfully to the overthrow of the Kaiser's legions. The new national army will be whipped into shape by spring, and then the gigantic task will begin of placing them in the trenches of Flanders and the Champagne, or whatever sector of the front is assigned them, unless peace should come in the meantime. And to quote one high official of the administration:
"Peace will not come while Germany is offering terms; not until she begs for them."
The Protection of Shipping.
Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo served notice last night that shipping which does not have the elementary measures of protection against the German submarine may hereafter be deprived of the privilege of war risk insurance.
This action has been inevitable. It has not been generally known that American ship owners have been negligent about submarine protection, but the Navy Department has heard much talk about the fact, since the shipping owners, knowing that war risk insurance kept them from loss, began to show alarming indifference as to whether their vessels were torpedoed or not. The government stood the loss; why should they put themselves to great expense to adopt the latest measures of protecting ships against U-boats?
Some of the American vessels have not been armed; others have not adopted the marine "camouflage" recommended by the Emergency Fleet Corporation and the Naval Consulting Board; smokeless fuel, and "smoke screens," both of which are regularly used by British shipping, have not proven attractive to American ship owners because of the expense. But it is certain that every American ship traveling the submarine zone must take these elementary measures of protection. Otherwise it is folly to grant them the privilege of war risk insurance, as Secretary McAdoo indicates.
Furthermore, there are new anti-submarine devices, the nature of which cannot be disclosed at this time, which have had a considerable measure of success, and which, as they are perfected, must become a part of the equipment of all merchant shipping. The expense of installing them should not be considered for a moment. If they save only a handful of ships, their adoption is justified.
Men versus Gravity.
No. 3.
All classes, whether rich or poor, are affected by the price of grain, coal and ore.
We need these basic products in peace as well as in war, and anything that affects their cost affects all of us, no matter whether we believe it or not.
Transportation is one of their big cost items, and if the railroads can save even a small amount per car load the total gain will be enormous.
For the first time in history our railroads are operating under a centralized authority which makes easy many betterments which were formerly thought to be impossible, and if the heads of this new organization issue any orders it is certain that American genius can be counted upon to work out the details with precision and dispatch.
One of these orders which we believe will bring about a radical and far-reaching change for the better can be stated in a few words as follows:
Use fifty (50) degree slopes in repairing old hopper-bottom cars, or in designing new ones.
For the nontechnical let us explain what that means. It means that coal and ore cars which now take forty minutes of labor to unload can be unloaded in one minute. It means that these cars are not confined to turn-over machines for their prompt unloading; and of still more importance, it means that this change for the better can begin at once. Slopes are unattended and free to the world.
Gravity will be doing our work instead of men or machines.
Gravity is always on the job and doesn't charge anything for its services. It is a willing worker for the public good if given a chance to get busy.
Ore producers have been utilizing gravity more than others, but still enough ore is being handled in faulty railroad cars to make it worth while to call attention to the fact that nothing short of steep slopes (50 degrees or steeper) and large openings (100 or more square feet) should be allowed on railroad cars employed in the ore service.
